About me

I hold a degree in Industrial Product Design with a passion for projects in all forms, from product development to visual communication. My background includes exhibition, prototyping, and interactive design, while my most recent work focused on UX and UI design. I am ambitious, with strong interpersonal skills, often serving as a cohesive force within teams. At this stage in my career, I aim to approach design in an interdisciplinary and experimental way, embracing diverse methods to grow both creatively and professionally.
